Commonwealth Government Super Co-contribution

The Super Co-contribution is a way for the Commonwealth Government to help you save for your retirement. If you’re eligible, the Commonwealth Government may match some of your personal non-concessional (after-tax) contributions made to your super with an additional super payment known as a co-contribution.

For the 2019/20 financial year, the matching rate is 50% up to a maximum co-contribution of $500.

How do you know if you’re eligible?

You’re eligible for a co-contribution payment if you:
• Have made one or more personal after-tax contributions to your complying super fund (such as GESB Super or West State Super) in the financial year
• Have a total income of less than the higher income threshold for that financial year (see table below)
• Lodge an income tax return with the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) for that financial year
• Are less than 71 years of age at the end of that financial year
• Have a total super balance less than $1.6 million on 30 June of the previous financial year
• Have not exceeded your non-concessional contributions cap for the financial year
• Receive at least 10% of your total income from eligible employment-related activities, or from carrying on a business, or a combination of both, and
• Do not hold an ‘eligible temporary resident visa’ at any time during that financial year, unless you are a New Zealand citizen or holder of a prescribed visa

Contribution matching amounts

If you’re eligible, and your total income is equal to or less than the lower income threshold, you’ll receive the maximum Super Co-contribution of 50 cents for every dollar of your after-tax contribution, to a maximum of $500. However, if your total income is between the thresholds, your maximum entitlement reduces by 3.333 cents for every dollar your total income is over the lower income threshold. If your total income is equal to or greater than the higher income threshold, you are not eligible for a Super Co-contribution. Use the ‘Co-contribution’ calculator at gesb.wa.gov.au/cocontribution to work out your maximum entitlement.

The table below shows the matching rates and thresholds for the 2018/19 and 2019/20 financial years:

You don’t need to apply

The ATO will determine your eligibility from details on your income tax return and information they receive from us. If you’re eligible, the Super Co-contribution will be paid directly into your GESB account. You don’t need to apply for it.

We report members’ contribution details to the ATO by 31 October each year. The ATO uses this information, together with your tax return, to determine your eligibility and the Super Co-contribution amount.

To find out more on the Super Co-contribution, visit ato.gov.au or call the ATO Superannuation helpline on 13 10 20.

How the payments are made

Payments will be made by the Commonwealth Government directly into your super account. If you have closed your account in the interim period, the payment will be returned to the ATO and redirected to you or your other super fund.

For tax purposes, the Super Co-contribution does not count towards your non-concessional contributions cap.
For more information about contribution caps, read the ‘Contributing to your super’ brochure available at gesb.wa.gov.au/brochures.

1 The lower income threshold is indexed annually.
2 The higher income threshold is set at $15,000 above the lower income threshold.
If you’re eligible for the Super Co-contribution, you may wish to pay some or all of your contributions after tax, instead of using salary sacrifice. This is because salary sacrifice (before-tax) contributions, aren’t eligible for a Super Co-contribution payment, as they are treated as employer contributions for tax purposes.

You aren’t entitled to a Super Co-contribution for any personal contributions you have made that have been allowed as a tax deduction.

You should seek appropriate financial advice before deciding whether to make additional after-tax contributions or not.

Other things you need to know

The Super Co-contribution is:

- Not subject to tax when it is paid into your super account
- Not included as income in your tax return
- Preserved in your super account and can only be accessed when other preserved amounts can be accessed – that is, when a condition of release has been met

Any investment earnings on the Super Co-contribution will be taxed like any other earnings of the super fund.

How to make personal contributions

- Call your financial institution’s telephone banking service or use their internet banking service by following the links in Member Online
- Once you have completed your Bpay transaction, remember to record your receipt number or print a copy for your records

Option 2: have contributions deducted from your pay

Download a ‘Super contributions’ form from gesb.wa.gov.au/forms
